It can act as your personal time manager, allowing you to create custom notification scenarios, with personalized audio sounds and event triggers. Being a portable application, it doesn't write to the system's registry (as opposed to installers) and can be launched from a removable drive. The program's interface is quite simple, but nonetheless, appealing. It can be manipulated by beginners, as well as by more advanced users because of its intuitive appearance. A new event can be added using the dedicated dialog, where you are required to select the type of timer to be used (countdown or count until a specified date and time), as well as to add a label, set the application to show a custom message and to choose the sound file for the notification. Also, the volume can be adjusted to your liking and optionally, features such as repeat, snooze, wake up computer from sleep or turn on the monitor can be enabled. The Options menu can be used to configure the snooze period (from one to ten minutes) or to choose the interval for the sound notification (from one minute to one hour). It would have helped if these were user-defined, although this approach doesn't bother very much either. When the countdown timer hits zero, a notification is displayed in a separate window, allowing users to exit or snooze it. In the event that you close it, the program still keeps the record in the list, so you'll be able to reactivate if later, if needed.
