Mail sync/mailserver features There are some mail features supported by EMACS that are hard to find on other apps. You can change the outlook of the app to your preference, forward all emails to another email client (such as Gmail or Yahoo) or generate multiple mailsubscriptions (in case you are subscribed to a certain number of newsletters or mailing lists). Another characteristic of EMACS that makes it one of the most desirable email applications is the integration with the BaaS. With it, you can signup for free to the online email service, for instance Gihub or FastMail, and manage all your accounts with a single window. Email organizer Besides being able to send and receive emails, send attachments and even upload files to the account, the app also manages your email identities. The first important thing to do with it is to create a new email account, so that it can be used as a default one. After that, you can add multiple identities, mark emails as junk/spam or delete them. Also, you can customize the label, add a signature and apply filters (to only see certain emails or folders). POP3/IMAP email client The POP3 and IMAP protocols are commonly used for mailboxes, while the newer POPS protocol is more suited for server access. When you use the IMAP protocol, you can download emails to your local disk, which is not possible with POP. Caldav/carddav email client One of the most common web-based calendars are the Google Calendar and the iCloud one.
