* First, do you really need Photoshop? Many graphics editing tools are available for free or at low cost (www.daz3d.com). Perhaps the best-known is the Microsoft image editing software Paint. Just because you use Paint doesn't make you a professional. It just makes you a citizen-photographer. Besides, if you do need Photoshop, you'll want the `_Creative Suite_` (www.adobe.com/uk/products/photoshop). You can get all the tools you need in this suite for a very low cost — as low as $79. It includes Photoshop CS4 Extended and the very complete set of Adobe editing tools. * Photoshop is a tricky program to learn. If you are a beginner at all, you'd better start learning a simpler program first. If you absolutely must learn Photoshop, read a good photography tutorial. ## Coding for Image Manipulation A code is `_black-and-white_` when it's always either black or white, and `_gray-scale_` when it can be anything from black to white to shades of gray. Digital photographs are gray-scale — the only color comes from the white balance — yet they are often composited of several different colors, blended together as one. Software that can blend them together and make them look like a single color is called a `_blender_`. Blenders are popular in the world of 3D, where if you have a smiley-face jigsaw puzzle to assemble or a dinosaur behind a glass window, you need to make a solid-looking 3D model that doesn't give away the secrets to the puzzle. Yet software such as Photoshop and PhotoImpact are designed to create final-image elements, whether they be photos, documents, or all three together.

which I currently live, lives in the rural area around a small town called Bastrop. Bastrop borders Washington and Comal counties and is about 50 miles southeast of Austin. The town is famous for its local pottery, but it is also home to an interesting and vibrant art scene. There are three art galleries in the town. There is the Arts Factory, Decorado Gallery and The Kondo Center. The Decorado Gallery is the larger of the three. The Arts Factory and Kondo Center are smaller galleries. The Arts Factory, or "Asquishas Arts Factory", was founded in 1987 and is located at 431 Main Street in downtown Bastrop. It specializes in ceramics, jewelry, fiber arts, painting, photography, as well as clothing, ceramics, woodworking and jewelry. The Kondo Center, or "Kondo" is a "galleridge" (ha!). They only have 2 artists represented, and they specialize in wood burning. The Kondo Center is located at 1210 North 1st Street. The Decorado Gallery is located at 12 South 1st Street. The Decorado Gallery has several unique features. One is a sit-down picnic area, which overlooks the gallery's two outdoor courtyards, both of which are available for classes and parties. The Decorado Gallery The second unique feature is the Decorado Gallery's first floor walk-through art gallery, a colorful, eclectic space that has the visual impact of a country art gallery. The Decorado Gallery recently organized a gallery walk-through in May, which was an incredibly interesting event. It was a great opportunity to see the space, learn about the varied art and artistic tastes of the artists, and see what's currently on view for purchase. I also met several of the artists in the Decorado Gallery, which was fun. The Kondo Center Both the Decorado and Arts Factory galleries have been featured in local newspapers, particularly the Austin American-Statesman, for quite a while now. I was happy to see my painting "Wonderland" featured on their cover last fall. It was very fun to watch my painting on the cover of the paper in my own home town. One of the artists who is featured in the gallery walk-through is Rick Wightman. His paintings may be familiar to some. He was one of the artists I interviewed for my blog, The Art of Dining: The Art of

The approval by the Government of the US$2.5 million Export-Import Bank loan to the Brazilian industrial giant Odebrecht SA (ODEB) is being criticised in the US. The Export-Import bank acts as a 'guarantor' or an 'indenture' for the loans, allowing the US government to gain a lucrative profit from the deal. The bank's role in approving Odebrecht's loan is being questioned because of the issue of 'self-serving' repayment by Odebrecht. While disclosing the US$9 million loan approved last month by the Export-Import bank to the construction company, the US finance ministry's statement said, "The government's Export-Import Bank (Ex-Im Bank) has expanded the scope and eligibility of its guarantee authority. To support Ex-Im Bank's expanded guarantee authority, the Office of Management and Budget approved Ex-Im Bank's status as a self-standing agency. The approval puts Ex-Im Bank in the same classification as the Department of Treasury, and therefore allows Ex-Im Bank to continue to receive appropriations and operate without the need to reauthorize its charter annually." The Ministry of Finance's press release further added, "The approval also allows Ex-Im Bank to continue the industrial development and exporting programmes it has undertaken under former President George W. Bush, and adds two new products, debt coverage for export finance transactions and credit enhancement for export and foreign investment activities."1. Field
