What is the issue with my dictionary creation I have created a dictionary to hold a list of animals, and i am storing a list of common names of them(as keys), and their associated body parts as values. My code is as follows, import random animalDict = {} animalName=[] animalBodypart = [] for i in range (1, 26): name = 'zebra'+str(i) animalDict[name] = animalName animalName = [] animalBodypart = [] animalBodypart.append("legs") animalBodypart.append("head") animalBodypart.append("tongue") animalName.append(name) animalBodypart.append(random.choice(animalBodypart)) print ("Animal Bodypart is: ", animalBodypart) print ("Animal Name is: ", animalName) The problem is as soon as my dictionary is created with the first animal, it is filled with both the names and body parts. I know that this is because my for loop goes into an infinite
