my advice is to contact phonerescue and ask it for the license key. they should have it ready for you within a day or so. then youll have a nice, clean iphone. every trial version comes with a 90-day trial, so there is no reason to pay for the license key if youre not going to use it. i was looking at the other reviews to find out if there is a way to get the files directly from the iphone. how do you do that? can you extract them directly from the iphone? or is there a data retrieval expert you hire to extract them for you? i think imobie is one of the best and probably the only iphone data recovery tool on market today that is able to recover everything on iphone/ipad (including ios 9.3.5, 9.6, ios 10, ios 11). i had my iphone 7 and i tried almost everything to find my notes and i finally did. it is also far faster than other tools that can only recover some of the data. even though this is an older iphone, it still works perfectly fine and imobie iphone data recovery has super fast and stable. hi, i have an iphone 6 and i accidentally delete the notes. i tried to recover from itunes and icloud but it did not work. after i uninstall and reinstall the itunes and icloud from the recovery mode, it could not find my notes and texts. if i connect my iphone to itunes and icloud, it will not show any notes and texts anymore. what should i do?thanks as i said in the itunes support answer, only "info.plist" file is considered the key component in that "info.plist" is just a special kind of "resource" file on ios and it is not usually presented to the user on disk. all "info.plist" files are supposed to be embedded in some other files, in ios 8 and later, they are generated from the resource fork file. it is true that info.plist file or its content are also not stored on disk. however if you check your icloud.db file, you will realize that there is no such a key as "notes". when itunes/icloud detects that you have deleted a note/message/chat, it will just create note/message/chat key in its icloud.db, that key actually means no more a "note"/"message" on icloud. and the other way around is when you scan a note/message/chat key that did not exist in icloud.db, itunes/icloud will find out that there is no such a key that called "notes" and it will delete it. this is why you always to scan your iphone and discover the missing notes/messages that are originally stored on icloud, if your intention is to get a backup of them, you need to do it before you delete them.hope that helps. good luck. 5ec8ef588b
