Helen Midgeleys free education stemmed not only from her own desire to learn and to improve herself, but from Georges desire for her to learn to see like a sighted person. He wanted her to teach a class in understanding blindness, and he wanted her to teach classes in self-awareness in order to help herself. He wanted to help her come to terms with her own blindness. Although the concept of mimesis is referred to in Cicero, Plato and Aristotle, it was the Greeks who first employed mimesis as a literary method and a literary concept in general. Their use was applied in writing the works of the classical Greek tragedians and other prose writers such as Thucydides, and Plutarch and the Roman poet Ovid. Although it can be defined more broadly as the representation of a character or of an action, most uses of mimesis in ancient Greek literature refer to literary representations of actual or near-actual human encounters. Helen Keller did more than learn sign language and learn to read by ear: she developed an amazing ability to synthesize, integrate, and refine all her senses. As she matured, she became a performer, using her acquired skills to communicate with others. When she was 4 years old, she began talking, and it would remain one of her greatest strengths throughout her life: the ability to communicate by voice and through the emotional expression of her face and body. The ability to read by sound would later be greatly enhanced by her near-perfect hearing, enabling her to read lips, something many congenitally blind adults never master. Indeed, Keller's sense of hearing was developed beyond the ordinary senses of blind people. For example, she could hear high frequencies; sound almost as if it were in a tunnel above her.

Steven Galezewski, born on May 11, 1923 in Inowroclaw, Poland, describes his childhood; joining the Polish underground in Minsk Mazowiecki, Poland; recalling that, in 1940, the Nazis ordered all the Jews to wear an armband with the Star of David; the relocation of his community into the Minsk ghetto at the end of 1940; the liquidation of the ghetto on August 21, 1942 and the survival of only 282 tradesmen who were still useful to the Nazi war effort; participating in underground activities, which included blowing up buildings or means of transportation; his resistance unit being sent under Soviet command; being stationed in Lublin, Poland; providing security for the public hanging of five SS officers in Majdanek in 1944; remaining in Soviet hands from March to July 1945; being perceived by the Soviet Union as a potentially subversive element supporting the Polish government-in-exile and then receiving a prison sentence from the Soviets; his transport to Siberia, where Polish guerrillas freed him; escaping into the American zone; joining the Polish Army in Italy but returning from Italy in 1947 and joining the British Army; immigrating to the United States in February 1951; and joining the US Army in 1956. EYE IN THE SKY stars Helen Mirren as Colonel Katherine Powell, a UK-based military officer in command of a top secret drone operation to capture terrorists in Kenya.

Through remote surveillance and on-the-ground intel, Powell discovers the targets are planning a suicide bombing and the mission escalates from capture to kill. After the Allied troops invade the d in September 1944, the Polish underground movement quickly forms for the d to liberate its populations. The Polish underground learns about an escape route to other d that lead to the Eastern Front in USSR and to the assembly point of the Polish underground near Kielce, in August 1944. The Poles organize a convoy for the d, which leaves the d in August and reaches a Polish prisoner-of-war camp in Soldin, which is a part of the Eastern Front, on the 8th of September 1944. The convoy transports the Russian W-Towers that had been manning the Breslau, W-Towers of Dresden, the Udziółowanie Warsaw, Łódź, and Łukawica factories in factories, and the Kalisz valley. The W-Towers had been installing the estimated 10,000 Polish prisoners in the factories in the early fw thousands of d when the Russians became aware of the ds location. The Polish prison wkrs allow many of the ds to be free, but around 10,000 d remain in the d into the SS liquidation of August 29, 1945, until shortly before the war ends. The Russians send a message to the British embassy in Moscow in early 1945 that they plan to do nothing with the Poles, which inspires the Allies to make preparations for the day after the war for the d. When informed of the liquidation of ds, the underground quickly returns to the d and reestablishes institutions of the Polish nation. 5ec8ef588b
